3.3 What is not Sexual Harassment?

1. Sexual harassment does not refer to normal conversation that all parties affected find acceptable. It does not refer to office relationships that are freely entered into without intimidation or coercion.

4.0 Preventive Actions:

1. State clearly and firmly to the harasser that his/her behaviour is unwelcome and that you want a particular behaviour to stop. If employees communicate by letter, then a copy must be preserved. If, after asking the harasser to stop his/her behaviour, the harassment continues, report abuse to your immediate appraiser and/or the Internal Committee (IC) formed for this purpose.

2. Say 'NO' emphatically and clearly when you are asked to go places, do things, and respond to questions, or engage in situations that make you uncomfortable. Do not worry about offending the other person. Take care of yourself first. Trust your own instincts about possible danger. In an uncomfortable situation, be direct and honest, and remove yourself from the situation immediately.
3. Do not blame yourself. It is a violation of an individual's basic human right to work and live with dignity. Do not ignore the incident. The harasser may misinterpret a lack of response as approval of the behaviour. Do not delay. Delay in action increases the probability that unwanted behaviour will continue or escalate. Do not hesitate to ask for help. Speaking up may prevent others from being harmed as well.
4. Speaking about sexual harassment is an effective tool in combating it. While speaking about it, the problem becomes visible, it is acknowledged that it exists, and this leads to taking effective measures against it. Speaking about it, also gives an opportunity to clarify about it. It helps in changing attitudes of people towards this issue. It creates awareness among the employees which makes it difficult for a potential harasser to misbehave.
5. All Program Leaders and key managerial personnel (KMPs) have an obligation to provide a work environment free from sexual harassment and to take preventive and corrective actions. Employees may discuss the situation with their immediate appraiser or with another person in a position of authority.
